NUMBER 43

17-YEAR-OLD SIKESTON GIRL KIDNAPPED WEDNESDAY

Mae Pepper, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan G. Pepper of this city, was the victim of attempted assault Wednesday night, having been picked up about 7:30 o'clock near her home and forced to accompany three young men to a woods grove south of the city between the two cemeteries. She was found at 8:45 o'clock by Mr. and Mrs. Milem Limbaugh, who had driven south to the "Y" station, and who heard her screams for help. They drove back to the station, notified Trooper Brooks and Sergeant Reed, who returned with them, lifted the hysterical girl over the fence and brought her to the Emergency Hospital.

A man stepped from behind a car parked in front of the Pepper house (it was the Ford pickup truck belonging to J. Otto Hahs, who, with a Standard representative were guests of Mr. Pepper Wednesday evening), accosted her with a revolver, and forced her to walk east past her home. She er, but was afraid she told her father and mother at the hospital later. They then met a negro man, she said, and she wanted to tell him of her plight, but her escort continued to prod her ribs with what she thought was the revolver.

back seat of the machine, and one drove. There is a break in her story at this point. She is unable to explain how she was induced or forced to enter the grove. It is surrounded by a high wire fence, and she must have been lifted across. A bruise on her forehead bears out her contention that one of the men struck her with his fist, and scratches about her throat shows that the girl struggled thinks. Her dress and waist are slightly torn, but she was not assaulted. During the car ride a piece of fur from her coat was ripped off in a struggle with the men. She told searchers that she tossed the fur out of the car window thinking it might assist in finding her. It had not been found at 1 o'clock Wednesday night. While hysterical, Miss Pepper continued to warn those who rescued her that "they'l kill you and they'll kill me", and at other times she mentioned Bob and Marge. Investigations revealed that she had refernece to an incident which happened after the basketball game Tuesday night. Bob Nicholson and Marjorie Mow, Miss Pepper and Woodrow Fitzgerald were dancing at The Bijou, when Miss Pepper saw a young man standing on the rear entrance landing. She called attention of Fitzgerald, saying that ened, but the man turned and left immediately without being recognized by Fitzgerald or by the other young folks. A man driving a Ford car had some time trying to locate the fellow, those who pleaded guilty included: voted. but eventually game up the search.

Then, it is essential that men who know the Ford car in every part, men who work with precision machinery and accustomed fingers, should do the servicing or make the repairs.

Your Sikeston Ford dealer therefore is the man to see when you need service, parts, or accessories of any kind. His clean, well-ordered shops are equipped with factory-endorsed service machinery. The parts used are genuine Ford parts-high in quality, low in cost.

Ford service is always most ecenomical-always dependable and safe-but at this particular time, when many cars require extra attention, special prices are in effect. Drive into the Scott County Motor Company Service Department and ask about them. A free inspection will be made of your car. You will know the cost of the work you order before it's started-and will find it agreeably low.

That choked-off sobbing finished Steve. His heart relented, and he leaned over and touched her arm

"Listen-I've been telling you a intervals the sharp metallic ring of bunch of lies. Windy isn't any more had dreemed for years of making the cash register married than I am. I was sore at master of the Cafe Royale. Windy-She looked up at him, cheeks tear stained, puzzled, uncomprehending, wanting to believe his about-face but incredulous. Not married? But you just said-

"Forget what I said. Windy doublecrossed me with my girl just after she promised to marry me. She wouldn't see me after that-wouldn't listen when I called her on the 'phone and tried to explain. I said that just to get even with him-to make Outbursts of ribald laughter; girls trouble for him. I didn't know you loved him, or that you were going to marry him. I'm sorry."

"Then it's not true? Windy isn't married!" The joy that shone in her eyes, irradiated her face, somehow made Steve feel amply repaid for foregoing his revenge, even when it was reaching the point of completion "Tell me about the girl," said Mame. "What did Windy do?"

"I had a date with her at her home the night after I reached my new berth with Squadron One of the Saratoga, but there was night flying tactics and I had to stay on the field. I invited her out and—Well, we had just reached an understanding when this dame that Windy had set on came up and pretended I was her sweetle-that I had deserted her She was not the sort of woman Annthat's my girl-would associate with, and naturally she was horrifled. She ran out to her car and left the field before I could get away from the dame and try to tell her it was all a mistake. She wouldn't see me again -wouldn't believe me when I telephoned and told her I'd never seen the creature before."

Mame was gloriously happy and

"I don't know that I blame you for trying to get square with that dumb one men to help you. I ox of a Windy—but you sure gave me any of the sailors to get a few bad moments." She began to

He pushed the bills back into her hand-bag and snapped it shut. lifted his glass of beer

"Here's to your happiness." "And to yours." She drank it in champagne. Steve in beer, and both were genuine * *

In front of the Cafe Royale, the crowds sauntering past, going in and out of the door, gave way before the elbows and the swinging gait of Windy Riker who charged through them like an angry bull through a corn field, intent upon getting to its tormentor. Through the open door of the booth at the side, he could see Mame and Steve drinking that toast to each other's happiness in love, and a snarl of rage escaped his throat. He the floor dancing with the percentage drink. Her eyes were misty with was plunging for the doorway when tears. Soon they were flowing down he saw Mame lean suddenly forward In front of the cafe were groups of her cheeks, making little runlets and kiss Steve on the cheek while Steve's hand reached for the curtain and pulled it across the doorway. "I'll kill him!" he muttered to himself, and at the moment saw Lieutenant Commander Duke Johnson approaching on the sidewalk. The sight of his Chief brought Windy to his senses If Johnson saw him here, away from his post overseeing the loading of stores on the Saratoga, he'd be broken, lose his place as leading Chief. Windy flattened himself against the glass window, partly concealed by the passing sailors and Panamanians. He heard Johnson hailed by Graham and Fisher as they came out of the Cafe Royale. While Johnson was speaking with them. Windy stole to the doorway of a shop beyond the Cafe and took refuge inside, remaining there until the three officers had passed from sight. He realized it was the part of wisdom for him to return at once to the Navy float and supervise the loading of stores, but recollection of that kiss which he had seen Mame imprint on the cheek of Steve brought back his flaming anger

He entered the cafe, elbowing and shoving his way through the throng of sailors and percentage girls, bumping into many without an apology or a look. He brushed against Joe Moreno who was too surprised at the suddenness of Windy's apparition to speak until the Chief was several yards beyond him en route to the booth where he had seen Mame and yanked it back so violently that it came loose from several of the hooks. and the pole clattered down upon the floor. Mame was there alone, sipping wine and smoking a cigarete. The amazement on her face turned to joy as she recognized Windy

"Windy!" she cried, happily, and sprang up to greet him, but Windy shoved her to one side and looked about for Steve-even looked under the table. Not finding him, he glared at Mame and bellowed in his big booming voice:

"Where is he?" Mame, with a gesture of frank elation and affection, sought to throw her arms about Windy's neck, only to have her arms pushed roughly

"Where is that guy, Nelson?" demanded Windy, ugly lights in his eyes, an uglier tone in his voice.

Maine's joy at seeing Windy turned to sudden anger at being pushed away without a kiss, or even a word of greeting from the man she had been longing to see and whom she master of the Cafe Royale.

"He's trying to patch up something that you busted, you big walrus! He's gone to cable to his girl-tell her how you busted things up for them."
"I'll get him!" roared Windy, and swung about to leave the booth. Mame grabbed his arm, her eyes glittering with resentment.

"Wait a minute. You listen to me!" The tone of her voice rather than her words made a dent on the mind of the angry and jealous man. He faced her, still glowering, but his manner a little subdued.

"What do you want?" "Sit down!" It was a sharp command, and still glowering and grumbling, Windy obeyed it, reluctantly. "I'll teach that guy to try to cut in on me. I'll twist his neck off, the

"Shut up!" again commanded Mame. "Now you listen to me. you dumb ox. Just because Steve Nelson's got more brains than you have and knows how to use 'em, you get eore at him and play a dirty trick on his girl, sending a low-life woman off the streets to make the girl believe he's been living with her-"It was Lulu," explained Windy. lamely. "That's no way to speak of

"I don't care a damn who it was, it was a nasty mean trick to play on any woman in love, and I don't think much of a man who would descend solow-why even a monkey wouldn't do a thing like that."

"Just the same," rumbled Windy, "no guy can rub his whiskers ca my gal and get away with it When I find Steve Nelson. I'm going through him like soup through a tin horr..'

"Yeah?" said Steve himsel" anpearing dramatically in the desired of the booth. "You're not the men you think you are. Windy."

Whittled PRICES

The biggest and heftiest knift in town is none too big for the job of price slashing in effect this week at Mitchell-Sharp Chevrolet Company's Used Car lot. Of the used cars in stock, every one has been affected by these stadtling price reductions. In all probability, you are considering the purchase of a hand-some, dependable car for warm weather driving. It will pay you to stop in and see these cars, to examine them closely and to compare their condition and performance. Purchases may be made on terms, of course.

17-YEAR-OLD SIKESTON GIRL KIDNAPPED WEDNESDAY

Mae Pepper, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan G. Pepper of this city, was the victim of attempted assault Wednesday night, having been picked up about 7:30 o'clock near her home and forced to accompany three young men to a woods grove south of the city between the two cemeteries. She was found at 8:45 o'clock by Mr. and Mrs. Milem Limbaugh, who had driven south to the "Y" station, and who heard her screams for help. They drove back to the station, notified Trooper Brooks and Sergeant Reed, who returned with them, lifted the hysterical girl over the fence and brought her to the Emergency Hospital.

A man stepped from behind a car parked in front of the Pepper house (it was the Ford pickup truck belonging to J. Otto Hahs, who, with a Standard representative were guests of Mr. Pepper Wednesday evening), accosted her with a revolver, and forced her to walk east past her home. She er, but was afraid she told her father and mother at the hospital later. They then met a negro man, she said, and she wanted to tell him of her plight, but her escort continued to prod her ribs with what she thought was the

She tells of walking through a There is a break in her story at this point. She is unable to explain how she was induced or forced to enter the grove. It is surrounded by a high wire fence, and she must have been lifted across. While hysterical, Miss Pepper continued to warn those who rescued her that "they'l kill you and they'll kill me", and at other times she mentioned Bob and Marge. is serviced properly when you take it to the Scott County Motor Co.

Your Ford was built for many thousands of miles of dependable, fault-free service. But no matter how good a car may be-how fine the parts or great the skill with which they are made and fitted-certain attention is necessary from time to time. Then, it is essential that men who know the Ford car in every part, men who work with precision machinery and accustomed fingers, should do the servicing or make the repairs.

Your Sikeston Ford dealer therefore is the man to see when you need service, parts, or accessories of any kind. His clean, well-ordered shops are equipped with factory-endorsed service machinery. The parts used are genuine Ford parts-high in quality, low in cost. Ford service is always most ecenomical-always dependable and safe-but at this particular time, when many cars require extra attention, special prices are in effect. Drive into the Scott County Motor Company Service Department and ask about them. A free inspection will be made of your car. You will know the cost of the work you order before it's started-and will find it agreeably low.

"That Interesting Store"

Home Furnishings—Our 34th Year in S. E. Mo.

Moving Some

Moving-moving-moving-did you ever move and find a lot of property you had forgotten you owned? It's the same way in moving a furniture store only more so. Result-a lot of odds and ends that are going to be sold regardless of profit-most of them perfectly staple.

Encouraging?

"You are not going into the White-Dorroh Building?" remarked a friend recently. "You are moving into what is known in and around Sikeston as the WHITE ELEPANT, which name was earned because it has either "busted" or lost money for every person who has tampered with it from the time it was built til now." Without going into details our answer is, "here's where a change will be rung".

Lowest Rent Ever

To show furniture properly, a lot of room is required and heretofore large rooms have brought high rentals. In our new home we have oodles of room, up stairs and down at the lowest rental of like quarters we have ever known about. This means lower prices, better displays and superior service to all who favor us with orders—and we can prove it.

Thanks for the Bouget, But—

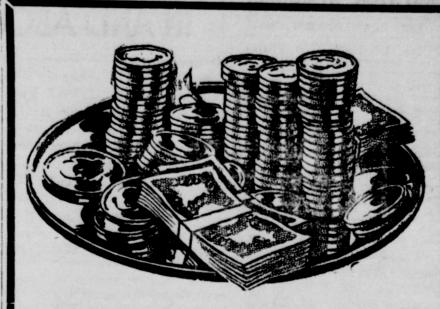

'Twas very nice of Mr. Blanton to say editorially that we have "the best furniture store between St. Louis and Memphis". The Standard Editor and I were raised in adjoining counties in N. E. Missouri, where hard work and democracy were considered essentials of good citizenship. Because of that circumstance, a sort of kinship and friendliness has arisen and that may have had something to do with the above large compliment. We all like compliments even if they border on flattery-but along with this one we shall also remember Walther Brothers and Excelsior of the Cape, Hubbard at Blytheville and The Fair at Cairo. If we can in the future equal the reputation of those fellows as furniture merchants, the job will be well done.

New Arrivals

Since moving we have received almost a solid car load of Florence Oil Stoves in the various models, also a car of living room suites direct from the makers and numerous assemblies of small goods. Among the shipments was one covering 30 all-steel Illinois refrigerators in ivory and green. It may be several days yet before the boys have these goods ready to show, but be assured they are A1 values.

Special to Buyers of High-Grade Rugs

It is a well known fact that dealers in cities the size of Sikeston are not justified in carrying in stock high grade rugs like Gulistans, Karnaks and other similar qualities. A representative of the mill from which we buy most of our rugs, will be with us about March 1st with a full line of samples including these high grade weaves. This is the largest carpet mill in the United States, if not the world. Housekeepers who may be interested in special type or sizes of rugs will be welcome to look the line over at that time and at VERY SPECIAL PRICES. Please phone us ahead of time and we will call you when this gentleman arrives.

"Then it's not true? Windy isn't married!" The joy that shone in her eyes, irradiated her face, somehow made Steve feel amply repaid for foregoing his revenge, even when it was reaching the point of completion.
"Tell me about the girl," said
Mame. "What did Windy do?"

"I had a date with her at her home the night after I reached my new berth with Squadron One of the Saratoga, but there was night flying tactics and I had to stay on the field. I invited her out and—Well, we had just reached an understanding when this dame that Windy had set on came up and pretended I was her sweetle-that I had deserted her She was not the sort of woman Annthat's my girl-would associate with, and naturally she was horrified. In front of the Cafe Royale, the crowds sauntering past, going in and out of the door, gave way before the elbows and the swinging gait of Windy Riker who charged through them like an angry bull through a corn field, intent upon getting to its

tormentor. Through the open door of the booth at the side, he could see Mame and Steve drinking that toast lattice work and colonades, the dance she reached for the glass with a hand to each other's happiness in love, and a snarl of rage escaped his throat. He was plunging for the doorway when he saw Mame lean suddenly forward Steve's hand reached for the curtain and pulled it a ross the doorway "I'l! kill him!" he muttered to himself, and at the moment saw Lieutenant Commander Duke Johnson approaching on the sidewalk. The sight of his Chief brought Windy to his senses. If Johnson saw him here, away from his post overseeing the loading of stores on the Saratoga, he'd be broken, lose his place as leading Chief. Windy flattened himself against the glass window, partly concealed by the passing sailors and Panamanians. He heard Johnson hailed by Graham and Fisher as they came out of the Cafe Royale. While Johnson was speaking with them. Windy stole to the doorway of a shop beyond the Cafe and took refuge inside, remaining there until the three officers had passed from sight. He realized it was the part of wisdom for him to return at once to the Navy float and supervise the loading of stores, but recollection of that kiss which he had seen Mame imprint on the cheek of Steve brought back his flaming anger

He entered the cafe, elbowing and shoving his way through the throng of sailors and percentage girls, bumping into many without an apology or a look. He brushed against Joe Moreno who was too surprised at the suddenness of Windy's apparition to speak until the Chief was several yards beyond him en route to the booth where he had seen Mame and joy as she recognized Windy "Windy!" she cried, happily, and sprang up to greet him, but Windy shoved her to one side and looked about for Steve-even looked under the table. Not finding him, he glared at Mame and bellowed in his big oming voice

'Where is he?" Mame, with a gesture of frank elation and affection, sought to throw her arms about Windy's neck, only to have her arms pushed roughly

"Where is that guy. Nelson?" demanded Windy, ugly lights in his eyes, an uglier tone in his voice. Maine's joy at seeing Windy turned to sudden anger at being pushed away without a kiss, or even a word of greeting from the man she had been longing to see and whom she her words made a dent on the mind of the angry and jealous man. He faced her, still glowering, but his manner a little subdued. "What do you want?"
